

Nicholas Tse
Head of International Arbitration at Brown Rudnick

Nicholas Tse is a Barrister & Avocat, and Head of International Arbitration at Brown Rudnick. He is global co-chair of the International Disputes practice, and a seasoned advocate with over 20 years' experience of representing governments, multinationals, banks and financial institutions, in international disputes. He is known for his dynamic and problem-solving approach, and has extensive experience of international arbitration, multi-jurisdictional commercial litigation, & ADR. Nicholas has worked on projects and disputes involving more than 70 countries, and he has arbitrated international commercial disputes in London, Paris, Geneva, Dubai, New York and Vienna and he defended China against the US before the WTO Appellate Body in DS/363. His State Court experience as a litigator includes the English courts, the French Courts, the Dubai International Financial Centre Courts and Dubai World Tribunal, and offshore jurisdictions such as Bermuda, the BVI, Cayman, and Jersey. Nicholas is recommended in Chambers Global, Chambers UK, and the Legal 500. The directories have described him as "precise, incisive and eloquent", and say he "does an impressive job of managing a path through complex cases."